FROM THE HEAD OF THE SCHOOL

Having been an athlete and a coach for many years, I believe very strongly in the effectiveness of teamwork in reaching goals, whether personal or collective. Given that one of the core values at BCS is support, it is important that the school promotes opportunities for us to work together to achieve specific goals. As I reflect upon this year, I can think of a number of examples when students and staff have used the team approach most successfully.

It has been only two days since Carnival ended, and the committee of Form V students deserves recognition for their teamwork in the planning and running of such a marvelous event. The Houses showed tremendous spirit and cooperation in preparing flags, cheers and skits and in competing for the right to hang the winning banners on their walls. The support of the staff must be recognized as well - the houseparents who had to survive long days and even longer nights, the teachers who refereed the games, the Dining Hall staff who made sure that we were all well-fed, and the support staff who provided enough snow for the sculptures and then cleaned up each night after we were all done.

Of course, significant examples of teamwork occur in the classroom on a daily basis. When students work together to prepare a presentation, when a teacher works with a student to edit his/her work before the final copy is submitted, when students serve as peer tutors in Sunday math sessions, when students work in pairs to carry out an experiment for a science class - these are all opportunities to work as a team, and in using these opportunities, students demonstrate respect for each other's knowledge, ability and ideas.

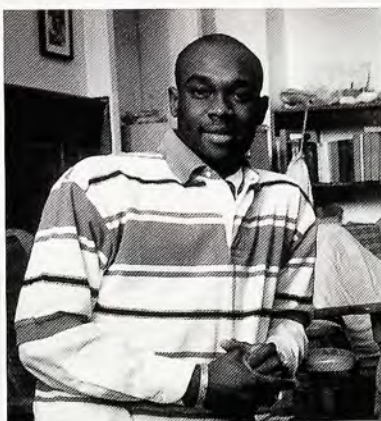

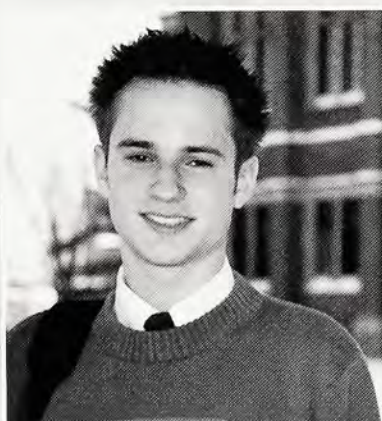

In addition, this Yearbook, the award-winning literary magazine Inscape, the Players' Club, the Shoe Box Committee, the choir, and similar extra-curricular activities all involve teamwork. The Rugby tour in March is the result of the coaches working together to make travel arrangements, schedule the games and hold practices to prepare the team. Naturally, the athletics programme is the most obvious area where teamwork can be seen. As athletes and coaches we must deal with the frustration of losing. By not allowing ourselves to be discouraged and learning from our mistakes and losses, we build character and become better human beings. With an emphasis on the team instead of the individual, we give ourselves a greater chance for success.

BCS hopes that each of you will contribute to the community in which you choose to live and work. By valuing respect for others and recognizing the importance of teamwork, we are giving you the tools to use in order to make such a contribution. I want to congratulate all of you on your successes this year and your ability to work with one another to achieve them.

TATIANA CHRISTIE

A little girl was once lost, but 2 others found her. They held her, never 2 let go & swore always 2 luv her. So they did! Then along came a prince & stole her heart. He touched her & she knew she'd never luv that way again. For 3 she'll 4eva hold her most precious memories. Sacred & unforgettable. EJ,SR,JR.

CHAPMAN HOUSE

The Haunted Year

Let me tell you a story about Chapman. Isolated in the middle of the lonely, dark woods of Quebec stands an old, quivering house. Far from common society and surrounded by palpable evil: cemetery on one side, and the headmaster's foreboding bastion on the other. Weird things happen here, mainly caused by the unusual people living in this house . . .

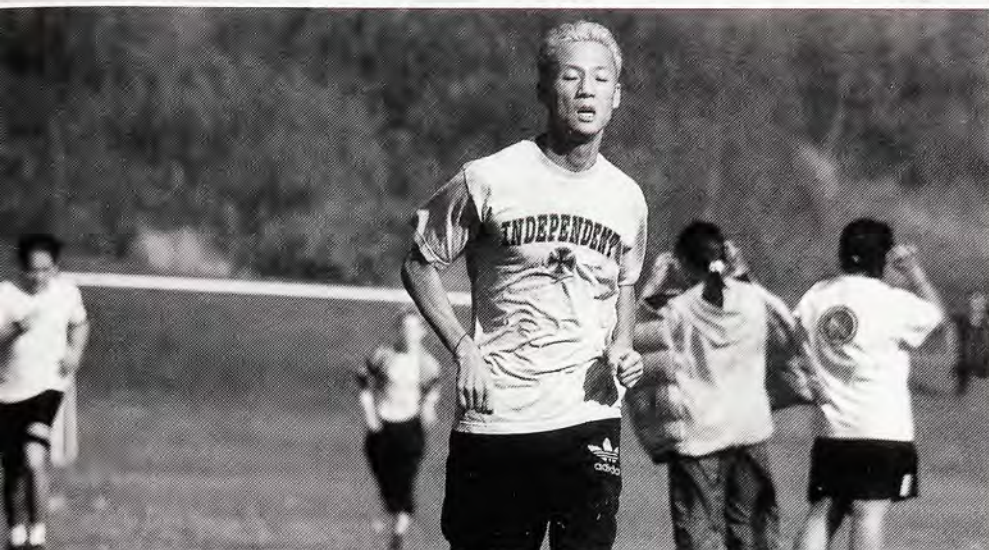

Two of the most unique individuals are Simon, trying to crack the code of eternal laziness on his computer, and his roommate View, who fell into a mysterious sleep, which almost held for the whole year. Dae is the only (still-) living medium between our poltergeists and the natural world. Oh, I have to mention that Chapman has not only one, but TWO house-owned ghosts. The names are eternally forgotten, but some dark nights their pale visages can be observed in the mirrors of this house. And then there was Dumas. Yes, that's right- WAS. He inexplicably disappeared, causing deep loss and change in Chapman. However, he wasn't the only one who disappeared. Erik Wright, the smartest brain BCS had ever seen, was kidnapped by Aliens and then sent to the underground laboratories of 'zeroknowledge' to work as a slave, leaving his comrade Max alone in the struggle for . . . well, for . . . Struggle itself.

Zarek and the rest of the house is forever cursed by his female vampire: "Can I talk tooo Zarek pleaaase?!" Sepand found inspiration in Kurt Cobain's final achievement and Phil is brave enough to leave the house at night to go for a smoke. We're still not sure if Artem was sent by the KGB and for what purpose? Our Fanatic Karim is ready to bring down a Holy War upon the school. Adam is training on his Starcraft-Simulator to take over the world once he gets out of fourth form . . . Karl fled on exchange but, too bad, he is still on dishes for the next year. Kunito, our Playboy from Japan, has always something useful to borrow and steal. Thanks and sorry, buddy: "Can we MEET your girlfriend?" Rastaman Kevin grew wings, and decided to FLY back to his island . . . And when Adi joined our bizarre bunch extra color was added to the haunted house.

Bram, our BU Student, still trying to convince Chapman House that he has authority, but I guess he is just too warmhearted. Mr. Maltby is afraid of the big black box and Mr. V, is absorbing garbage information, watching the wannabe-intellectual show of Jeopardy. Madame Morin, the only female in the house is in a constant panic to leave the house before 10:15 so that the ghosts won't catch her. And finally, Mr. D, house parent of this domicile, is in his eternal quest to shorten our nightmare by a few minutes every morning.

And nobody will forget the blackest night of all. The night, the lights died and the ghosts awoke. So, if YOU feel ready for an endless walk into the unusual, and if you've seen the Exorcist a few times without having to change your diapers, hike up the THE HAUNTED HOUSE.

GRIER NORTH

"PAAAAUUUULLLL!!!!!!"

".... Yes, Bobby?"

2000! It was a big year for North...

Big Mac/Pun's retirement left a hole in the hearts of the North Boys, but he was replaced by someone more than capable of filling those shoes - Carter! We'll see how Cassidy does next year.

A typical day in North starts slowly, to the soothing sound of Mr. Filion... "Boys, Please wake up Please." Carter is close behind: "Anayan!" The 7th form wake up to the sound of their alarm clock... The chapel bells. After breakfast, Mr Kandalaft has a nap, in the middle of the reading.

9:15pm: HOUSEMEETING!

Who's missing? Monaco's punching a wall; PM is inspecting Major Turner's room. Koochie and Caron are fighting over the computer; Where's Jae-Wook? Check Pholkrit's room. BFilion tells us that tuck was raided overnight, and several wrappers were found in The Ball's room. Cory blames Phil, who pulls the fire alarm to cover his escape. He bumps into Matt, who drops his green Gameboy. PFilion tells us that Devon's CD store has been shut down. North's G.N.P. is now a battle between Sandy's Mexican Escort Service, and the Drug-Free crack house in Luke and PM's room. There have also been complaints about Pholkrit moving his mattress into the phone booth. Now Liz has to send Cory e-mails instead. But now Blidberg doesn't have to worry about leaving his homework to get the phone! Vikram didn't notice... he's been sleeping since 3:30pm. A jam session has started in Frank's apartment as Bilal opens the Quik-E Mart. "Thank you! Come again!" Victor buys a MEATstick. P.M. thinks that's some sweet badOOgea, dude. Sandy, Alex and Ball are playing Bond, and studying the Torah. KIOSK! Downstairs, Sajeev has locked his arms behind his head in a dancing accident. But it's time for the Youseff Hour! Tell Adam to shut off that stupid breakdance video first.

Doctor Booth informs us politely that it's bedtime, but the boys are far from finished. There's a heated freestyle session in Adam's room, and Bobby is on the phone, as the North ambassador to Galt. The DVD theatre in Devon's room just opened, and Gunesh is collecting ticket stubs. All the patrons leave after Monaco offers them some of his sausage. Luke and McNubbin promptly go into a corner to make fun of everyone. Sandy goes off to his bed... the wooden frame in Alex's room. Mr. Macdonald arrives just in time to stop Blidberg from sacrificing Vikram to his Viking God. Chris Reid's been asleep the whole time, his head resting on a rugby ball.

Finally, the Grier North boys settle in for the night, the memories of another great year fresh in their heads.

P.S. Thank you Filions, for all the fun!

MCNAUGHTON HOUSE

At 6:15am the house is still quiet, with the exception of Big Willie Styles. Styles because of the way he wakes us up. By 6:45 the Super Soaker 50 is loaded and ready. By 6:50 every student is lying in puddles. Except a few. Phil Desseres is already up at the dining hall patrolling. After being woken up by his roommate, Phil Cortes is out on his 20 km bike ride, training for the nationals. And ever since the new house captains were named, Ali hasn't been able to sleep. Robert is still talking to Xiao. J.P sleeps fine, however his roommate, Jonathan is anxiously awaiting the day he goes back to Mexico and breathes fresh air so he can sleep. John Colton is up planning the fastest way to strike Quebec Gold. Max is still trying to sneak out for his cigarette. Armen doesn't want to be disturbed from his pleasant dreams of Grayson. Nick and Nick are up and ready for morning room inspection. Sacharuk is dreaming of the Archie episode when Archie tells Veronica that he is in love with Betty, while Frank is crawling into Archie's bed. Sang is not in McNaughton as he is still at Mrs. Holland's, while Harrison has the whole room to himself while he thinks of J.M. Wally is still up curling his hair and Alexis is trying to straighten his. Eric is too tired from being woken up several times during the night by those looking for tuck. Yuichi and Mike wake up with their faces stuck to their keyboards. Colin and Mo are sleeping through the credits of the fourth DVD. Parseh and J.P B. have been lulled to sleep by the hum of their electric fans and are exhausted from an episode of towel tag the previous night. Sohei is bloated from an awesome cuisine he cooked the night before and before . . . and Stephen is still dreaming of Danielle and his painted figurines.

At 7:20am Big Willie makes his way to the 7th form corridor for the 5th time to see Ray - packing to move to Chapman.

Brandon - getting up just to go back to sleep.

John - Waking up to find that his nose is still bigger than ever.

Jean-Marc - getting up to close his windows so he can block out the Islamic prayer

Poncho - Oh Godddddddd, Mr. Williams dey again flip me."

At 7:25am - Ken is asking if it is 7:10am yet.

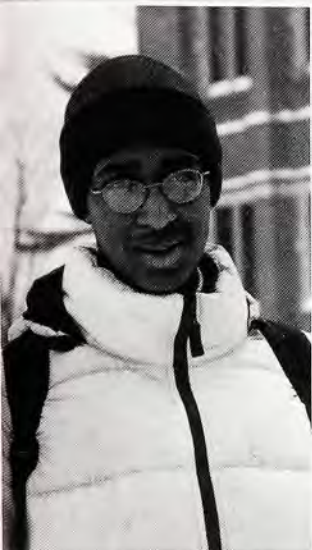

At 7:50am - Alejandro is just rolling out of bed to prepare for his sprint to chapel

Fortunately Big Willie has it easy as Dan no longer sleeps in McNaughton.

As for the teachers. Mom Holland is preparing her diagnosis for the house problems, and A.A is never ending. Pfliger is still trying to match Tiger Woods. Touriste Tessier is still working on proving that there are an infinite amount of prime numbers. And Queen Diane is looking for something to do in between cutting hair, washing dishes, baking cookies, sewing buttons, helping with homework etc . . .

While Toonsis sleeps on.

GLASS HOUSE

1999/2000 Under Glass

Another quiet night in the Glass menagerie sees Sarah Leavitt offering a space to anyone adding to her body graffiti. Anna Gaby bounces in revealing the latest fashions. Jessika throws us a curve, back from a tour of Sherbrooke, wearing a softball mitt. Boobra, always right, exclaims it's not her bedtime, only Juniors. Melina and Johanna gracefully slide in, inviting others to check their latest dance steps. Joannie is screaming "I am not getting pigs, I am getting turkeys" - her dreams of pig farming crushed. Francesca, our Glass pepper, is yelling "Hey People . . ." Ever energetic Aletha takes aim with a burrito, as Glass' innocent angel Jena helps BU Terry show her stuff, before ducking out and screaming after Alley. BU Sacha lets out a string of inappropriate words. Jan and Jenn, shocked by the language, leave for a night in Lenn-vegas wearing cardboard boxes. Meanwhile, Hanae prepares yet another amazing meal. Amelia's laugh echoes in the common room and as far away as Chapman. Chelsea L. is desperately seeking tuck and Chelsey R., as usual, is there to open the well-stocked Tuck Shop to help her out. Ariane excitedly reports a new addition to her list of fans. Steph Colton comes looking for her Visine, it's 4:21 and she's late for her daily walk in the woods. Alina promises to STOP SMOKING and her boyfriend asks for support. Simone takes on BCS's best in arm wrestling and helps to win the M2K senior banner.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Harding sews suits for the entire swim team. Mrs. K walks th Glass stair master to try to keep up. Mrs. Lowry reads the purple book. Chae Rin clomps upstairs from the basement, while Emily plays tricks in the bathroom. Will she be caught? Mrs. McIntyre hands out salt toddies for tonight's line up of garglers. Ashlea, a budding Garth Brooks, practices songs for the next talent show. The Stellanator is beating up Christina as she attempts to practice violin. Adrienne, wrapped in a fluffy towel, fixes her hair. Anna has entered her gating book collection to the Guinness Book of Records. Cassandra, redhead wannabe, models the latest rave attire for the next dance. Tomoko is clowning around while Grayson, resident choreographer, keeps her pario handy to shield eyes from her best moves. Ha Na's eyelashes are not FAKE and seem to attract the boys! Arpun, inside a plastic bubble to avoid bacteria, screams Stop showing us that!" as Steph Haidar flashes by and Jess leans over the garbage eating bread. Rinko quietly folds her underwear and counts candygrams. Ritu studies her new watch - it's about time! Tomorrow she and Ji Ah race to get out of the house at 7:25 to avoid the Breakfast Club. Song-Yee asks for late lights, to sneak out and play Nintendo 64. Sarah complains about never-ending phone bills and how she can't even call Toronto. Tat, ever the sweet princess, claims her corner of the sofa and sits quietly with nothing to say in house meetings.

It was so much fun to be a part of the Glass family. To our graduating sisters, goodbye and best of luck . . .

MUSIC THROUGH THE AGES

Carnival once again passed by too fast. As a committee, it's sad to see it gone, but we have many memories to cherish. A lot of interesting things came out of our daily meetings: Caro is always busy with her ideas of "Le Striptease". Rinko is yelling at us about finances while the world 'anal' slips out of Jess and Maggy's mouths. Maggy is reading us her deep friendship poems, and we hold in our laughter. Parseh is coming up with the best ideas for the theme ... NOT! Alexis is trying to keep Mr. Williams under control. Audrey is acting as a referee during the yelling. Kevin is rubbing cake into Jess's face. Amelia is laughing in the corner. Sandy ... well, where is Sandy? Oh! Skiing. But he always comes through. Jess is showing us her new Cyndi Lauper moves.

In the end, Carnival turned out great and the rest ... well, nothing a little therapy can't take care of. Come on Steve, we're not ready for Penny Sale! Thanks, Steve, for everything.

Carnival XOXO
